Young Victims
Pathfinder Project

How the project works

- We work directly with young people 13 to 17-years-old on 1-to-1 basis and/or group/workshops that will provide emotional and practical support to ensure individuals can get their life back on track.
- We work with victims to access positive activities and opportunities
- We provide advice on employment, further education, benefits and debt, and health including drug and alcohol issues
- The service supports young victims of crime that has an impact on their life.
- Ongoing support links to the young person's experience as a victim and future safety planning.
- Our team work closely with the local restorative justice hub ensuring that victims are aware of the restorative justice options that may be available to them.
- All of the work delivered is community based and outreach focused, ensuring that we meet young people where they feel most comfortable and confident to engage.

Referrals

Young people can refer themselves by contacting Alex Flook directly by telephone or email.

Referrals from family members, friends, and professionals are also welcome.

Partnerships and resources

We work with agencies in Essex to:

- Better support the victim
- Improve the delivery of effective services to victims
 - Improve the outcomes for whole families
- Reduce the need for young people to go through this alone.
